

Social Justice Internships

The FaithJustice Foundation has immediate openings for one or more part-time social justice interns to help organize Social Justice Summer 2020 and related programs. Internships are available for spring and summer.

The FaithJustice Foundation is a new nonprofit organization formed to equip and empower faith communities to take action for social justice. The goal of the FaithJustice Foundation is to provide education, training, and resources to congregations and other faith-based organizations who are or want to be engaged in grassroots, social justice ministry, advocacy, and action.

Social Justice Summer 2020 is a national call to action for congregations and other faith communities to a dedicated time of social justice-themed worship, study, discussion, and action. For 4-6 weeks during Summer 2020, faith communities across the country are invited to offer: a book study on social justice, a social justice sermon series, small group discussion, and at least one social justice action.
